WHAT WORKED LAST WEEK

WHAT TO TRY NEXT WEEK

Creator launch checklist

- [ ] Confirm every platform you'll use allows your niche, and read its content rules in full.
- [ ] Choose a stage name and check it's free on X, your sales platforms and Telegram.
- [ ] Create a separate email address for creator work, used nowhere else.
- [ ] Turn on two-factor authentication (an authenticator app, not SMS where you can avoid it) everywhere.
- [ ] Set up your X profile: SFW avatar and header, a clear bio, and your adult media marked as sensitive.
- [ ] Write a pinned post: who you are, what you make, where to buy, and your boundaries.
- [ ] Film or prepare at least two weeks of content before you announce your launch.
- [ ] Decide your prices, and write a short menu for customs if you offer them.
- [ ] Keep model releases and ID records for everyone who appears in your content, as your platforms require.
- [ ] Plan your first 30 days of posts (the content planner can help).
- [ ] Decide how much you'll put aside for tax, and keep receipts for business costs.
- [ ] Schedule a weekly review: what worked, what didn't, what to make next.

Privacy and account-security checklist

- [ ] Use a creator-only email and phone number that aren't linked to your personal accounts.
- [ ] Use a password manager and a different strong password for every account.
- [ ] Remove location data from photos and videos before you upload them (check your camera settings too).
- [ ] Check every shot for identifying details: windows, post, documents, tattoos, reflections and distinctive furniture.
- [ ] Never film in a way that shows your street, car registration or workplace.
- [ ] Keep your legal name off public profiles, and check what your payment platforms display to buyers.
- [ ] Think carefully before showing your face, and decide it on purpose rather than by accident.
- [ ] Search your stage name and reverse-search your photos now and then to find leaks.
- [ ] Watermark previews, and know how to file a takedown (DMCA) request with each platform.
- [ ] If intimate images are shared without consent, StopNCII.org can help stop them spreading on partner platforms.
- [ ] Keep personal and creator social accounts completely separate, including who you follow.
- [ ] Write down what you'd do if you were doxxed: who to contact, which accounts to lock, where to get support.
